RULES

Hackfest '93: The Dull vs. the Wretched

Holes 1 Through 9

Foursome #1	Foursome #2
Steve Blake	Tim Hidani
Mike Sauer	Roger Mahre
Eric Peterson	John Kast
Brett Johnson	Jeff Carter

Four Man Average
-All golfers in each foursome will play for individual scores. Within each foursome those scores will be averaged (added together and divided by four) to determine a single score for all players in each respective foursome.
-All other rules of golf and the particular golf course apply (ie lost balls are not penalty enough).
-There is a 48 stroke ceiling for this nine.

Holes 10 Through 18

Team #1	Team #3
Mike Sauer	Tim Hidani
Brett Johnson	Roger Mahre

Team #2	Team #4
Steve Blake	John Kast
Eric Peterson	Jeff Carter

-All golfers in each twosome will play for individual scores. For scoring purposes, only the lowest score on each hole from amongst the twosome will be counted on eight of the holes. The total of the low scores on eight of the holes and the single highest score from among all nine holes will be the team's score for this nine. In case of a high-score tie, the score which most adversely affects the team will be chosen.
-Honors are by team based on individual scores.
-Both members of each team will receive the same score for holes 19-27.
-All other rules of golf and the particular golf course apply (ie lost balls are not penalty enough).
-There is a 48 stroke ceiling for this nine.

Holes 19 Through 27

Foursome #1	Foursome #3
Eric Peterson	Jeff Carter
#4	#3
#5	#6
#7	#8

Personal Responsibility plus 3:
Tournament artistic director will explain the format on-site.

Holes 28 Through 36
Do-it-Yourself and the Head-to-Head Addendum
-Foursomes are the same as those for holes 19-27.
-All golfers will play for individual scores. In addition each golfer also will be going head-to-head with one other golfer (on paper only, the golfer won't be in your foursome so you won't know how you did until you get to the clubhouse). In the head-to-head competition each player who wins the most holes (out of nine) over his opponent will be allowed to subtract the difference (of total number of holes won) from his total score. Ex., Jeff and Eric go head-to-head and Jeff wins all 9 holes, Jeff will be able to subtract nine from his total score. If Jeff wins five holes and Eric wins four, Jeff will subtract one from his overall total.

The head-to-head contestants are as follows:
Tim Hidani   Brett Johnson
versus Mike Sauer   versus Roger Mahre Jeff Carter   John Kast
versus Eric Peterson   versus Steve Blake

-All other rules of golf and the particular Golf Course apply (ie lost balls are not penalty enough)

Notes
-The overall winner will have the lowest total score.
-In the case of a tie, the oldest tied player wins.
-All rules are subject to the interpretation of the tournament artistic director.

Player Notes and Predictions
in order of this year's computer rankings

Jeff Carter -1   Eric Peterson-2
Tim Hidani-3   Mike Sauer-4
Brett Johnson-5   Roger Mahre-6
Steve Blake-7   John Kast-8

Jeff "Oh-so-virile" Carter: Overrated

Eric "King Kong" Petersen: Nope.

Tim "The Mill" Hidani: Won't do it.

Mike "Alarm Clock" Sauer: Did it twice.

Brett "Languid Potatoes" Johnson: Can't do it.

Roger "Law and Order" Mahre: Never even seen it.

Steve "88 Keys" Blake: Smells like he did it.

John "The Firm" Kast: Never heard of it.

17 August 1993
Dear Mr. Mahre,

Greetings my fellow hackfester (with an emphasis, as ever, on fester).
I hope your summer has been the same maggot infested pile of innards that mine has. As a way of squeezing even more wretchedness into your already pathetically doomed existence I bring you news of the 1993 Hackfest: the dull vs. the wretched.

You my friend have been chosen, with slovenly rapidity, to join the usual suspects that will make up the meager field of poor-to-average golfers who will waste an entire weekend day in the company of other truly ordinary humans (yes I could have written a longer sentence). Gosh, I sure hope you will attend, no, really, please play. I'd be excited beyond all repair if you'd show up. This glorious life affirming love-in is scheduled to take place on Saturday, September 11th, 1993. Let me know right away if you have scheduling conflicts! The course has yet to be designated.

The "dotardly dozen" club wielders in this year's moron-a-thon have once again been chosen and ranked by the Hackfest computer and your tournament artistic director. The sadistically dull combatants are:

Past Champions
Jeff "Oh-so-virile" Carter (1987
Mike "The Alarm Clock" Sauer (1988, 1989)
Steve "88 Keys" Blake (1990)
Brett "Languid Potatoes" Johnson (1991)
Eric "King Kong" Peterson (1992)

Unproven Slime
Tim "The Mill" Hidani
John "The Firm" Kast
Roger "Law and Order" Mahre

By agreeing to play in this tournament you are also tacitly agreeing to abide by the tournament rules and (if by some miracle you should win) to proudly display the trophy whenever a Hackfest player comes to your home and asks you to do so. Enclosed please find the rules and other miscellany in regard to this year's Hackfest. Read the rules and bring them to the tournament. You are responsible for knowing them!! You must contact me upon receipt of said materials in order to confirm your place in this year's Hackathon.

Have a nice day,

Brett Johnson
